Seminar Topic :

Emergence of Women's Movement in India in 20th Century

Objective of the Seminar

The objective of studying the emergence of the women's movement in 20th century India is to analyze the socio-political, economic and technological factors that shaped the fight for gender equality. This examination aims to highlight how advancements in technology, changing labor dynamics, and evolving legal frameworks contributed to new forms of activism and advocacy for women's rights. It also explore how traditional barriers, such as patriarchy and systemic discrimination, were challenged by intersectional movements addressing caste, class and sexual orientation. By understanding the strategies, successes and struggles of this futuristic women's movement, we gain insight into the transformative role it plays in achieving gender justice in a rapidly evolving society.
